

Street Photography

What is street photography?

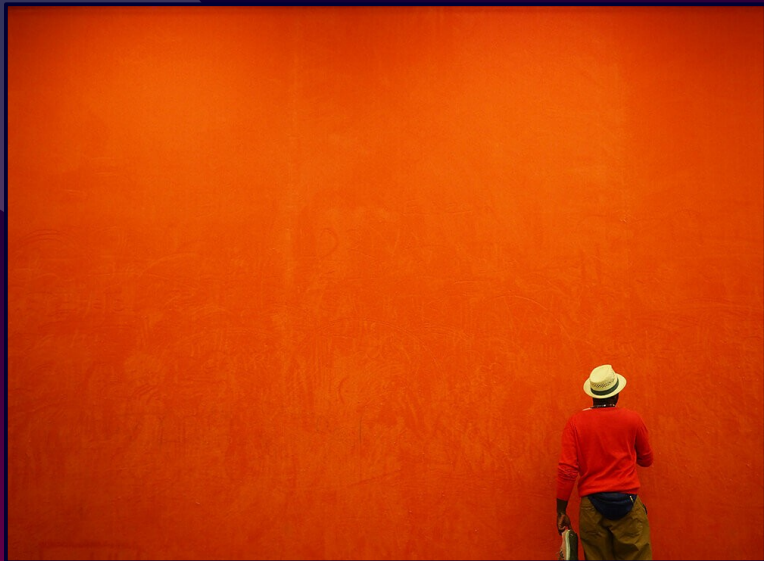

Street photography is when artists take photos of things they see in day to day life whilst out and about, usually in a built up area.

Normally the photos aren't posed. No one asked for the photo to be taken. No one said '1 2 3 cheese'.

The artist saw something they thought was interesting and just took a photo.

It could be a cool building, and beautiful colours or a person for a particular reason (but always ask permission).

UK street photography

Holy Trinity street photography

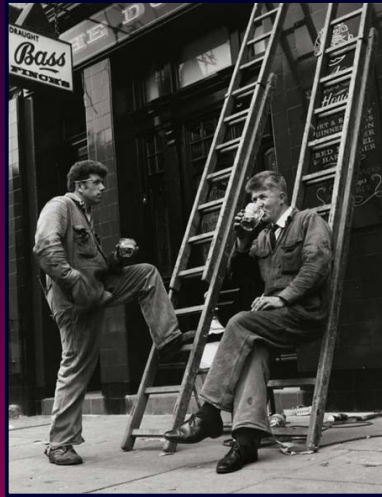

UK street photography

Photography is a great way to capture a slice of life and the UK is a great place for street photography. We have so many different buildings, cultures and backgrounds.

Here are some British street photographers you might want to look at.

Tony Jacobs
Linda Wisdom
Callum Cole
Dorothy Bohm

Your street photography

This week want you to take your own street style photo.

You can do this while you are out and about in your local area.

You can shoot your photo on a camera, phone, Ipad....anything really!

You could even use a filter to make your photo black and white.

You can use members of your family or friends in your photos but make sure it is candid (they aren't posing for your photo).